Access Statement for Sittingbourne's Steam Railway

Situated in Sittingbourne, Sittingbourne's Steam Railway maintains the history and role of a unique industrial railway used to carry raw materials, finished articles and employees between the various sites of the papermaking industry.

The railway operates over a two mile length of track with public access at Sittingbourne Viaduct Station, Milton Regis (Asda) Halt and Kemsley Down Station (no vehicular access). It is open on Sundays from April to September, Wednesdays in August and other days as published in the timetable available in printed format or on the website.

Kemsley Down station is only accessible from the Saxon Shore long distance footpath. Sittingbourne Viaduct Station is accessed by a 20 step flight of stairs. Milton Regis (Asda) Halt is accessed by 3 steps, a grassed path and a flight of 12 steps. Each rake of coaches has at least one vehicle that will admit standard sized wheelchairs. Two wheelchairs are available for loan free of charge.

The café which is situated at Kemsley Down has ramped access. There is also a shop selling a range of Souvenirs at Kemsley which has ramped access but with a 50mm door threshold. Also at Kemsley there is a small exhibits museum and wildlife garden. These are accessed via a gravelled and grassed walk way which does have a short final gradient. Toilet facilities are at Kemsley Down Station. There are no dedicated disabled toilets.

Information signage for exhibits and the wildlife garden is at a minimum of 16pt font in a plain type face.

When the railway is open, railway staff are available at Sittingbourne Viaduct and Kemsley Down Stations and also on the train and will give assistance if required.

Please note that we are working on making the railway accessible to all and at present are undertaking negotiations and fund raising for ramped access at Sittingbourne Viaduct Station.

We look forward to welcoming you. If you have any queries or require any assistance please email info@sklr.net or phone 01795424899 (only staffed during opening hours).
